JUSTINA LASLEY, M.A.

Author, Founder and Director

Institute for Dream Studies

Charleston, South Carolina

Justina is a leading dream specialist who enjoys working with individuals and groups to unlock the wisdom of their unconscious. Justina shares with clients her enthusiasm, keen insight, and talent for relating to others, facilitating rapid movement toward a more authentic, spiritual, and fulfilling life. She is a lecturer, a trainer for dreamworkers, a leader of individual and group dreamwork and a facilitator of workshops.

Justina's studies and her experiences in creative arts add depth and imagination to the exploration of dream imagery and metaphor. Her years of experience as a teacher enhance her capabilities as an instructor and enable her to assist individuals on their path to personal and spiritual growth.

Justina earned her Master's degree in Transpersonal Psychology with an emphasis in Dreams at the University of West Georgia, and has a B.A. in both Applied Art and Education from Converse College. She also studied at the University of Paris and with many well-known authors and dream specialists. Justina has been conducting dream groups and/or workshops for 20 years. She is the author of two books, Honoring the Dream: A Handbook for Dream Group Leaders and In My Dream..., a unique dream journal to capture and record dreams, thoughts, and sketches.

Justina is married to the Reverend Chad Minifie of Hilton Head.

More information regarding Justina's work in the world of dreams and her philosophy of dreamwork can be viewed at www.DreamSynergy.org.
